

10th International Conference on the Historical Links between Spain and The Americas

City College of New York,

April, 30th - May 2nd, 2025

CCNY Division of Interdisciplinary Studies at the Center for Worker Education (CCNY CWE), the Instituto Franklin de la Universidad de Alcalá, the and the Instituto Cervantes of New York come together for the tenth consecutive year in the organization of this conference through this call for proposals in different disciplines and areas of study with a special emphasis on interdisciplinary approaches to the links between Spain and The Americas.

The X International Conference on the Historical Links Between Spain and The Americas will deal with the influences and connections across the Atlantic, both in the past and the present from a political, social, economic and cultural point of view, as well as in relation to the current challenges of the international community related to the new geostrategic order imposed by the war in Ukraine, the emergency of climate change, or the new Asia-Pacific relations. As main points of this annual meeting, these issues will be discussed from an Atlantic perspective and, more specifically, from the relationship of Spain and The Americas and Caribbean Islands with the goal of proposing new answers to new problems, without forgetting the roots of a more than 500 -year-relationship with the American continent.
